THE BARD IS WELL, BUT WILL NOT START. MINGSTON LAME AGAIN-MYSTERIES ABOUT DUK-

BOYNE-TRIBOULET'S GALLOP. The Bard is perfectly well. He has not missed a gallop since he went into training this year. His next public appearance will be in the Coney Island es, 1 1-8 miles, at Sheepshead Bay, on Saturday, when with 122 pounds up he will meet Emperor forfolk with 103 and Hanover with 118. It will be great race. On Saturday The Bard, carrying 136 nds, worked a mile and a quarter in 2:12 witht turning a hair. This is Suburban weight and Suburban distance and the trial was eminently satistory to Trainer Huggins. Yet, I am enabled to state positively that Mr. Cassatt's great horse will not go to the post on Thursday, no matter what the eather may be. If Chesterbrook has a representative in the Suburban it will be the victor of last year, the much abused Eurus.

"I'm not sure he'll start, either," said Mr. Huggins yesterday, as he opened the stable door so that I night look carefully over the great unknown quantity in every race for which he is sent. "I attempted to give him a trial yesterday but he wouldn't go a yard and I had to bring him back to his box. him again to-morrow and if he goes to suit me I'll send him to the post Thursday."

Does he boss the establishment?" "He does pretty much as he pleases. Eurus is a Nobody knows how fast or how far he can go. I don't think there's a man living who could ride him with spurs, and as for the whip, he'll go any way but forward when you cut him." I suppose Hayward will ride him in the Subur-

wouldn't be safe to start him." "You don't think he could be beaten?"
"Well, yes; I do think they'd beat him. Would you like to look at him?" The trainer opened another door and I feasted my eyes on the satin coat and enormous muscular development of the magnificent son of Longfellow. He as herd as nalls and as sound as a roach. He Isn't handsome. He's too great to be good looking. Eurus is a more shapely animal.

"What are the chances of a match with Emperor of Norfolk !" I asked.

"None, so far as I know." replied Mr. Huggins. "The only conditions I should agree to are these: Weight for age, a mile and a quarter, $10,000 a side." Mr. Huggins explained pleasantly his sudden return to Sheepshead Bay from Jerome Park. It was not due

The majority of trainers are strangely reticent and absurdly slily about the horses in their charge, and to well nigh impossible to persuade them to say what they will or will not start for the Suburban. In England you find no such nonsense. There the public knows weeks beforehand the probable starters in every This is the way the Suburban looks to one the has tried to find out all about it from horsemen who are credited with knowing their own minds and being aware of their own intentions:

Blue Wing, who hitherto has been considered a dangerous element, will not be ready. When I visited him yesterday he had a pair of striped trousers on his One of the stable-boys said he wore them to keep the flies off his legs, which had been fired.

Comemana worked a fast mile and a quarter yesterday, and finished in a style that filled her owner and trainer with glee.

Triboulet is doing all that is asked of him. His jockey-trainer worked him mine furlougs in 2:01 yesterday, and said it was only a gailop. Triboulet is a big, rangy feilow with large bones and long, flat muscles. He reminds you of Raceland and Ranburg, two of the homelest horses in training. Turfmen at "the Bay" hold him in high esteem. His stable companion, the speedy little Geraldine, is a beauty and as gentle as a littlen. Floodlide, a two-year-old, is one of the most bloodlike youngsters seen this year.

Grever Cleveland was a great lorse in California until Triboulet met him and taught him how easy it was to gallop a mile and 4 quarter in 2:08 1-4.

Mr. Haggin has a "dark" horse, eligible to start, who may furnish the surprise and upset of the race. This is Kouny, a four-year-old by Duke of Montrose out of Irene. He is a recent arrival from Rancho del Paso, and is said to be a clinker.

Eunborne is the mystery of the race. He is as fine a piece of horsefiesh as eye ever beheld. His quarters are superb. He is as acrive as a bundle of steel springs, and llooks as if he could carry a mountain and stay all day. No one has yet succeeded in getting a line on him. It is darkly hinted that Jennings exercises him at night on the wagon road that runs parallel to the Culver Railray. The little train that drops from the summit of the hill by Greenwood Cemetery makes the running and Dauboyne beats it every night under a double pull. He has aiready broken four records.

Still, I doubt if Dunboyne can beat the Bard.

records. Still, I doubt if Dunboyne can beat the Eard.

Given a fair day and a fast track, the foregoing list of probable starters may be divided into three lots—impossibilities, possibilities and probabilities. The Suburban has not yet been won by a poor horse, and is not likely to be this year.

The impossibilities are these: Joe Cotton, Dunboyne, Eliwood, Dry Monopole, Grover Cleveland, Richmond, Connemara, Ordway and Eurus.

Possibilities—Erra Cotta and Triboulet.

Probabilities—Linden, the best of the Dwyers'—except Joe Cotton—and the best of Haggin's.

Should rain set in and make the course heavy one of the lightweights with such a lead as Eurus got last year might make a runaway race of it. Stiff going would also help Dry Monopole, who revels in mud, and Eurus, who delights in it.

Terra Cotta is expected to reach sheepshead Bay tomogrow. He is thoroughly seasoned and rightly wound up for a brulsing race.

The executive committee of the Coney Island Jockey Club drove over the course yesterday and Superintend-ent Clarke pointed out the hundred and one improve-There are to be only eight mutual machines in the betting ring. Coops for seventy five bookmakers have been placed in position. The course never pooked more attractive.

"Ardel."—Your namesake was undoubtedly a starter in the sixth race at Jerome Park on June 7, and under racing rules all bets made on him stand. No money was refunded. Those who backed him lost. The judges excused him as an act of mercy. "B" is entirely right in his contention that as the horse went to the post it was equivalent to his running the race. "A" loses accordingly. But let him have a sharp eye and a few dellars on the rogue when he starts again and he may get even.

SAFETY FROM THE WIKES.

HOW ELECTRICIANS WOULD, SECURE IT.

MR. JOHNSON WANTS LOW PRESSURE-MR. HINE GIVES MIS VIEWS.

A manager of a Fort Wayne electric light company told the coroner's jury which was investigating Lineman Murray's death, that he had been six years in the business, and didn't know half as much about the tricks and eccentricities of electricity as he thought he did when he had been at it only six months. It is no wonder, therefore, that the coroner and his jurors, none of whom are experts, found the subject perplexing. Said an electrician speaking of the matter: They have treed the electrical coon, but they know nothing of the nature and habits of the varmint, and about all they can do is to keep up a tremendous barking around the tree, until people who have the necessary knowledge organize an expedition to bring

With a full appreciation of his own ignorance on the subject, a reporter of The Tribune called on E. H. Johnson, the president of the Edison Electric Light Company, to get his opinion of what should be done to render the wires harmless. The Edison people. let it be observed, have never killed anybody with their wires, and are therefore not on the defensive. "Let me ask you a question," said Mr. Johnson when the reporter had explained his mission. "Would you allow to be introduced into your house an electrical current of such strength that touching the wire with the hand, under certain conditions, would produce instant death?"

"No," replied the reporter emphatically.
"Very well," said Mr. Johnson, "apply the sam rule to the streets. Prohibit the employment of elec-trical currents of such power that they will kill, and you attain perfect safety at once. And that is the only thing I know of that will insure perfect safety. There are two methods of electrical lighting; uses a high pressure current, and the other a low pressure current. The high pressure current kills. the low pressure current can't hill. From this statement which can't be contradicted, anybody can draw his conclusion as to what should be done to insure perfect security, if that is thought worth attaining." Will not putting the high pressure wires under ground render them harmless ?"

"By no means. It is an open question whether danger to life would be materially lessened. The current would still have ample opportunity to escape to houses and buildings adjoining the wires. Certainly the danger would be greater if the electric light companies did not employ better insulation than at present. It should be understood that the dangers from electrical currents are of two kinds-they may kill or they may cause fires. A current may be strong enough to ignite wood and yet not be strong enough to kill or even to infure a person who comes in contact with it. Next to prohibiting the use of the current that kills I would favor putting the wires underground, where they could not come in contact with the loose wires that are dangling overhead, and the compulsory employment of the best practical form of insulation. The question is largely a matter of dollars and cents; the wires are badly insulated now. Why? Because a better insulation would cost more money, and by increasing the copper in your wire you lessen the danger by decreasing the force of the current. But that of course means more

But by the low pressure system can you get as powerful lights as you do by the high pressure sys-

Certainly you can, only it would cost more money Because of the danger high pressure currents are forbidden in certain cities in Germany. In the Edison system you can take hold of the positive and negative ends of the wire through which flows a current that supplies 30,000 lights and you would not be harmed. This shows that perfect safety is attainable."

The reporter next called at the office of the United States Electrical Lighting Company and there conversed with Henry Hine, the manager of the sales department. This company manufactures both high pressure and low pressure plants. Mr. Hine said that the abandonto keep the files off his legs, which had been fired.

The lad also informed me that Troubadour was on the road, and would arrive at sheepshead to-day or to-morrow to go at once into training.

thousands. In New-York electricity had killed four people.

No company wanted to kill people. That wouldn't pay. But if the wires were put underground it was questionable whether that would afford greater security. It was much more difficult to secure good insulation underground than overground; earth was a good conductor; air a good insulator. The present insulation was defective; better could be employed, but science had not yet devised a thoroughty satisfactory system of insulation. Electric light companies would not spend large sums of money to secure better insulation of their overhead wires until it is definitely settled whether they are to go underground or stay overhead. If put underground it would require the use of an entirely new system of insulation, and the present subways could not do away altogether with overhead wires; they would still be required for local distribution between blocks. The electrical problem he regarded as an extremely difficult one which should not be settled hastily.

MANHATTAN BEACH THROWN OPEN. A CHARMING DAY AT CONEY ISLAND-MANY THOU-SAND PLEASURE SEEKERS.

Two or three fifteen-inlinute showers at Coney Island yesterday only scattered the fine layer of dust on the Concourse and gave the sea air an additional touch of moistness. When the sun came out again, after the rain, and the salt breeze blew briskly in from the ocean, no element was lacking for a perfect day at the beach. The whole island was alive, from Manhattan to West Brighton, with pleasure-seekers of all sizes and ages. The iron steamboats discharged passengers by the hundreds every hour at the fron piers, under whose chelter some enthusiasts tried a brief dip in the surf, and on whose broad promenades the more leisure-loving sat or walked, watching the waves roll in and tumble the bathers helter-skelter. The Sea Beach Road brought down recruits half-hourly, and by the middle of the afternoon every beer-garden and dance-hall in West Brighton was crowded with thirsty patrons. rumor that an escaped hyena was lying hid behind a sand bank at Norton's Point drew some fighting Fourth Warders in that direction. But the hyena was not to be found, and the only wild animal in sight at tiger After the rough-and-tumble gayety of the West End the Brighton Beach section looked quiet and even deserted. The big hotel is not in complete rder yet, and stands back a couple of hundred feet from the line of travel. The Marine Railway was running yesterday. Its Brighton Station is now far nt in the water, and is reached over a long passageway built on piles. The beach here is being washed away rapidly, and can only be saved, apparently, by a system of breakwaters. Some improvised ones along the Concourse, which is also threatened, have done much to stop the ravages of the beach-combers there. The Concourse, by the way, is badly cracked up, some

The Concourse, by the way, is badly cracked up, some of the guilles being worse than the "breakers" on a country road.

The Manhattan Beach Hotel was opened yesterday for the season, and that, of course, was the chief feature of the day. The big frame building was in spick and span order, the turf in front of it as smooth and velvety as a well-kept lawn, the flowers everywhere in bloom and the fountains spiashing in brisk competition with the surf beyond the sea-wall. A sacred concert was given in the music-hall, and the porches and the benches on the lawn were filled with well-dressed people. The first display of floworks will take place in a day or two, and Gilmore's band will begin its regular concerts before the end of the week. The Long Island Enliroad ran frequent trains to the beach yesterday, from both Eay Ridge and Hunter's Point. The Oriental Hotel will not be opened till near the end of June.

erday, and James R. Allaben made an address. While getting in a street car of the Hamilton Ferry line, at Third ave. and Twenty-third-st., on Saturday night, Thomas Ferrett, age twenty-five, of No. 33 Walcott-st., slipped and fell beneath the wheels. He died from his injuries in a short time.

NEWS FROM THE SUBURBS.

NEW-JERSEY. It appears on investigation that the killing of Charles Berkey at Union Hill, Saturday night, by Thomas Bodier was purely accidental and Bodier will probabiy be released on ball to-day. Berkey lived in West Hoboken. He and Bodier were warm friends and when he called to see Bodier Saturday night the latter took him up to his room to show him a new revolver. While they were examining the weapon it accidentally went off and killed Berkey. Bodier was arrested. JERSEY CITY.

The body of a man, age about fifty, was found yesterday in the "Gap" at Washington-st. He was dressed in a dark sult and white underclothing, and had $1 22 in his pocket. Some visiting cards in his pocket had the name of "John Offerman, No. 419 Humoldt-st., corner of Jackson-st., Brooklyn, E. D." Thebody is at Speer's morgue. It was claimed last night by a relative. The drowned man was Offerman. particulars were given as to the way in which he lost his life.

Edwin Penny, junior member of the firm of Clock & Penny, and one of the oldest and best known mer-chants of Bayshere, died at his son's home, in East-pert, Saturday night.

WESTCHESTER COUNTY.

It was a year ago yesterday that the First Presby-terian Church of Mount Vernon held is first service, and the anniversary was marked by a large attendance, an excellent address by the Rev. J. Stoddard Lane, the recently elected paster, and an atmosphere laden with the perfume of flowers of every kind. Several children were baptized. The services were held in Presbyterian Hall.

ANCIENTS AND HONORABLES BACK AGAIN. The delegation of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery London which has been visiting this country arrived at the Grand Central Station at 9 o'clock last evening from Boston, where they have been enjoying a round of fativities for the last fortnight. They were met by a de tachment of the Old Guard, who escorted them to the Victoria Hotel, where they will remain until Wednesday, when they set sail for home. To-day they will visit the public buildings of the city and call on Mayor Hewitt at the City Hall, and in the evening, together with the Old Guard, will occupy boxes at the Casino. Generals Sherman and Schofield and about 150 West Point cadet will also be present. Tuesday they will take a sail down the harbor, and in the evening they will give a reception to the Old Guard at the Victoria Hotel.

OLD AND YOUNG SOLDIERS AT THE CASINO. Besides the three companies of West Point cadeta imbering 100, who are to visit the Casino this evening in full uniform, there are to be present under the escert of the Old Guard, the Honorable Artillery of London, numbering twenty, also in full uniform, occupying five of the proscenium boxes. The cadets will leave the Victoria Hotel at precisely 7:45, marching up Broadway, and reaching the Casino in pienty of time for the borin-ning of the performance. General Sherman and party will occupy one of the proscentum boxes, and a number of officers from West Point will be in several of The house will be decorated with English and American DR. MCGLYNN BY NO MEANS SATISFIED.

Dr. McGlynn addressed a large audience at Cooper Union last evening, on "The making of a people's party. Dr. Jeremiah Coughlin, who acted as chairman, in introducing the speaker, said that since the last meeting. President Cleveland had been "howled" into momination. The '84 platform was adopted; but there was nothing in that to reduce taxation on the products of laber. Mr. Cleveland was sure to follow in the product of his predecessors. It would be a relash of the platform adopted four years ago, and that would make it no better. Dr. McGlynn said that the "tariff tinkering" at St. Louis was no good, because, after all, the reduction was infin

NO ONE TRIED TO KILL THE BOY. A statement was published Saturday that a boy of fifteen, named John Louis Polo, a foster son of Charlotte fifteen, named John Louis Polo, a foster sen of Charlotte Polo, a celered woman, itving at No. 184 High-st., Brookiyn, had been the victim of a brutal assault, supposed to have been instigated by an attempt to get him out of the way as an heir to a valuable estate. Investigation showed that the story of the assault had grown out of an accident which happened to the boy on Thursday night, when he fell from a truck on which he was playing. Mrs. Polo said last evening that a few years ago she believed an attempt was made to kidnap the boy by inveigling him on board a vessel, but he was rescued before the ship sailed. When he was burt on Thursday evening, Mrs. Polo thought an attempt had been made to kill him. Polo thought an attempt had been made to kill him.

FAREWELL TO PASTOR HALLIDAY.

PLYMOUTH CHURCH EXPRESSES ITS APPRECIATION OF HIS LIFE WORK.

The Rev. Samuel B. Halliday was sufficiently re-covered yesterday to go out for a ride. He will go away to the country for an extended rest to-morrow. The committee appointed by Plymouth Church on Fri-day night to express to him the sentiments of the church in accepting his resignation as Postoral Helper waited on him yesterday and presented the following

As a committee appointed by Plymouth Church at its meeting held on June 8, 1888, to present you with a written testimonial, expressive of the high esteem in written testimonial, expressive of the high esteem in which you have been afe, and will ever be held by the members of the church, we desire to say your long and useful labors for the church have made you an inseparable part of its history, and in no small measure a factor in its success. Your ministrations of mercy have soothed sorrow; the consolation of Christ dispensed by you in the same and storm by day and by night to rich and poor. sun and storm, by day and by night, to rich and poor, have comforted the afflicted; the Gospel carried by you in heart and in hand has proved the power of God unto salvation, and demonstrated a personal God loving the personal man.

Of such services Plymouth Church is not and could not be oblivious, but gratefully and heartily acknowl-edges their value as inestimable. In the future you will be followed by our prayers for God's richest blessing; and may the consciousness that you have not lived not labored in vain, that you are enshrined in the hearts of the suffering and the destitute, that you have honored God and served your fellows, be the glorious sunset of your life, and the bright awakening of the morn in the New Zion when you are welcomed by those with whom and for whom you have labored and with the Master's "Well done" greeting.

MR. BLAINE SHOULD BE IN CONGRESS.

From The Pittsburg Times. The Republicans of this country have no idea of allowing Blaine to go into private life at present. There is a strong belief that he should be in the next Congress to take a hand in the settlement of the tariff question, and give his powerful support to the Republican Administration which will be inaugurated Marca 4, 1880. No question Blaine could run in any Congressional district in the country, if he desired to do it. The Republicans in any district would feel proud in having him for their candidate; and any district has a right to make him its candidate; and any district has a right to make him its candidate. But there is one district in which Blaine could with peculiar propriety be taken up by the Republicans. We mean the XXVIth, which Congressman Scott regards as his property. Blaine, as the Republican candidate there, would give to the battle a National interest. Furthermore, there would be a fitness in putting him against Scott, as the personal representative of the President. In a direct sense, it would be matching Blaine against Cleveland. Blaine's election to Congress would surely follow. It would be a great thing to have the Plumed Knight in Congress. It would be a great thing to beat Scott, and through him Grover Cleveland, in sending him there. What say the Republicans of the XXVIth District. The Republicans of this country have no idea society, reported that the woman had befriended the particulars were given as to the way in which he lost his life.

John Reid, of Hoboken, who was appointed one of the Jury Commissioners for Hudson under the law passed by the Republican Legislature last winter, has resigned the presidency of the Hudson County Republican League. As the law was passed to take the selection of juries out of the control of politicians, Mr. Reid thought it would be inconsistent in him to be a Jury Commissioner and the president of a political organization.

STATEN ISLAND.

Over 20,000 people yesterday visited Buffalo Bill's camp at Erastina.

Shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning, four men named George Bryant, Alfred Whitey, Joseph McCabe and William Doyle, of Tompkinsville, entered the livery stables of Fred, Husse, in Montgomery-ave, Tompkinsville, and stole a horse and buggy. After a hot pursuit, they were arrested and taken before Justice W. C. Casey, who commisted them for further examination.
